WELCOME TO THE ARGYLL HOTEL

Welcome to the Argyll, one of the finest and most historic hotels on the West Coast of Scotland. Situated at the gateway to the Highlands, the Hotel offers traditional hospitality, excellent cuisine and a Highland welcome. Open log fires, peaty malts, comfortable lounges and conservatories with views over Loch Fyne make the Hotel the destination of choice for both traveller and business person alike.

The Hotel was designed in 1750 by the famous Scottish builder John Adam. The Hotel formed part of the total rebuilding of Inveraray commissioned by the 3rd Duke of Argyll and was originally built to accommodate guests to the Castle and visiting officials attending the then newly-built Inveraray Court.

Today the Argyll offers standards of hospitality that more than live up to its illustrious past. Completely modernised and refurbished, the hotel is now one of the premier hotels on the West Coast of Scotland, offering excellent standards of food and accommodation, with many rooms enjoying stunning views over Loch Shira or Loch Fyne. Upgrades to luxurious executive rooms are available to include four poster or sleigh beds.
